

By now many of you have heard about the BLUNDY SISTERS (Scott Blevins and Guyton Mundy) routine at the Boston Showdown Competition last month (February) where they won the audience over with their surprise routine (kept secret up until the moment they walked in under the cover of darkness).

I turned my video camera on when these guys started to learn to dance in high heels (and learn their routine as well) and followed them thru the unexpected up and downs of putting this show on including getting dressed and putting their makeup on. Their dress down to the unmentionables was totally authentic and the makeup professionally applied. For over 4 hours I followed them. But then the show started and I had to leave to video the show. So I turned over a spare camera to Natalie Mundy and she started shooting backstage as they waited to go on (they were last). Some of the funniest footage I have ever seen. So I sat down and turned the whole thing into a documentary called THE TRANSFORMATION INTO THE BLUNDY SISTERS. After seeing it and hearing early comments on it, they decided to let me make it available to anyone interested.

This is shot as documentary and shows a side of Guyton and Scott you will never see again (so they say)
